REPLY TO STATE'S ARGUMENT

Firstly, Defendant-Appelant's brief specifically argued why any alleged speed violations did not support Deputy Knipfer's traffic stop. See Defendant-Appellant's Brief, p. 12. The State's brief focuses entirely on Mr. Talavera's failure to signal prior to turning as the basis of the stop. It is a well-established rule that an appellant's arguments not refuted by the respondent are deemed conceded. See Shadley v. Lloyds of London, 2009 WI App 165, ¶26, 322 Wis. 2d 189, 766 N.W.2d 838; Hoffman v. Economy Preferred Ins. Co., 2000 WI App 22, ¶9, 232 Wis. 2d 53, 606 N.W.2d 590; Schlieper v. DNR, 188 Wis. 2d 318, 322, 525 N.W.2d 99 (Ct. App. 1994); Charolais Breeding Ranches, Ltd. v. FPC Secs. Corp., 90 Wis. 2d 97, 109, 279 N.W.2d 493 (Ct. App. 1979). For this reason, the remainder of Mr. Talavera's reply brief will focus entirely on Mr. Talavera's failure to signal as the basis for the traffic stop.

The respondent cites to State v. Houghton, 2015 WI 79 when it argues that the standard for a valid traffic stop is reasonable suspicion that a traffic violation occurred. See State's Brief p. 5. The State also references Houghton when it argues that even without reasonable suspicion; the traffic stop should be upheld because there was a reasonable mistake of law. See State's Brief p. 10. However, the State provides no authority that Houghton should apply retroactively. Houghton was decided in April of 2015. The incident in question occurred in January of 2014. It is Mr. Talavera's position that Houghton should not be applied retroactively. However, even if it is, the State's argument still fails for the following reasons.

First, as noted on page 5 of the State's brief, "the officer must be able to point to specific and articulable facts which, taken with rational inferences from those facts, reasonably warrant that intrusion." (emphasis added). In addition, the State correctly points out that the Wisconsin Supreme Court decision In re Anagnos, 2011 WI App 118, ¶ 9, held that

"[e]vidence in the record must support a finding that Anagnos's failure to use a turn signal affected other traffic." See State's Brief p. 7.

In the present case, we have only a conclusory statement from the Deputy Knipfer that no other traffic was affected "other than me." (R. 15; 25) There are no "specific" or "articulable" facts supporting this conclusory statement. The State attempts to make up for the lack of facts by simply arguing that the Deputy Knipfer would have been affected as he was only two car lengths behind Mr. Talavera's vehicle. However, there is no factual basis supporting this assertion other than the Deputy Knipfer's own conclusory statement. This argument is fleshed out in Mr. Talavera's original brief and therefore need not be repeated. That being said, it is worth emphasizing that the standard set forth for reasonable suspicion in the State's own brief requires more. It requires the "specific" and "articulable" facts that happen to be devoid in this case.

Second, any attempt to argue this was a reasonable mistake of law should be rejected. While the State argues the language in the statute can be interpreted multiple ways, the law was clearly set forth by the Wisconsin Supreme Court in Anagnos in 2011. Even if this were not specifically spelled out in Anagnos, the State points to nothing in the record demonstrating the Deputy Knipfer's knowledge of the law. For example, we do not know if the deputy knew the language in the statute at the time of the stop, his training on the issue, his knowledge on Anagnos, or any other germane facts he had a the time of the stop.

CONCLUSION

WHEREFOR, Mr. Talavera respectfully requests this Court to reverse and remand the trial court's denial of his Motion to Suppress on the grounds that the Deputy Knipfer lacked probable cause and reasonable suspicion prior to detaining Mr. Talavera.
