Intervenors-Petitioners Stephen Joseph Wright, Jean-Luc Thiffeault, Gary Krenz, Somesh Jha, and Sarah J. Hamilton (“Citizen Mathematicians and Scientists” or “CMS Intervenors”) hereby respond to Intervenors-Petitioners Lisa Hunter, Jacob Zabel, and John Persa’s Motion for Relief from Judgment, dated January 16, 2024.

ARGUMENT

The Court should grant the Motion for Relief from Judgment. In Clarke v. Wisconsin Elections Commission, 2023 WI 79, 998 N.W.2d 370, this Court expressly overruled the mandatory “least change” approach that produced Wisconsin’s current, gerrymandered congressional map. Id. ¶63. In Clarke, the Court also made clear that, “[a]s a politically neutral and independent institution,” it must “take care to avoid selecting remedial maps designed to advantage one political party over another.” Id. ¶71. In so doing, the Court rejected holdings from this case and returned to legal positions it had championed for more than a century. See, e.g., Jensen v. Wis. Elections Bd., 2002 WI 13, ¶12, 249 Wis. 2d 706, 639 N.W.2d 537; State ex rel. Lamb v. Cunningham, 83 Wis. 90, 148, 53 N.W. 35, 57 (1892); State ex rel. Att’y Gen. v. Cunningham, 81 Wis. 440, 483–84, 51 N.W. 724, 729–30 (1892).

Given the recent holding in Clarke, this Court should now vacate the congressional-redistricting judgment in Johnson v. Wisconsin Elections Commission, 2022 WI 14, ¶¶7, 25, 52, 400 Wis. 2d 626, 971 N.W.2d 402 (“Johnson I”), summarily rev’d on other grounds sub nom. Wis. Legislature v. Wis. Elections Comm’n, 595 U.S. 398 (2022). And following vacatur of the judgment in Johnson II, the Court should promptly invite the parties to submit new proposed maps that remedy the malapportionment of the 2011 congressional map without mandating a “least change” approach and without favoring or disfavoring either major political party.

The Citizen Mathematicians and Scientists can be especially helpful in this remedial process. The CMS are not self-interested politicians. Rather, they include, among others:

- Professor Wright, the current Chair of the Department of Computer Sciences at the University of Wisconsin–Madison;
- Professor Thiffeault, the current Chair of the Department of Mathematics at the University of Wisconsin–Madison; and
- Professor Emeritus Krenz, the former Chair of Marquette University’s Mathematics, Statistics and Computer Science Department.

Any remedial map that these professors and the other CMS Intervenor propose will benefit from the power of computational redistricting—the use of high-performance computers to generate and evaluate maps that attempt to optimally comply with multiple redistricting criteria simultaneously. The expert team the CMS Intervenor have assembled will use advanced computing and algorithmic optimization techniques to systematically sort through millions of alternatives and identify the maps that best balance Wisconsin’s redistricting principles. And they can do all of this in a matter of days, not months. The result will be a streamlined remedial process and a vastly improved, politically neutral congressional map that promises the people of Wisconsin fair and equitable representation in the halls of Congress.

CONCLUSION

The Court should grant the Motion for Relief from Judgment.
